

ARRESTS SOLVE TWO OHIO MURDERS

EFFORTS TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS MADE AS REDS RESUME MARCH

Gunboats Sent And Government Troops Also Bar Advance

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Measures for the safety of foreign residents were taken at several places in the interior of China today as the Communist troops which ravaged and burned Changsha, capital of Hunan province, advanced toward other rich centers bent on pillage and destruction.

All foreigners with the exception of missionaries were evacuated from Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, as the marauding troops advanced upon that city from the south. The American destroyer Peccos was ordered to Shanghai to protect American lives and property there, while foreign gunboats were stationed in the Yangtze river at Klu-Kiang in case of emergency.

Evacuation of Kuling, popular Chinese summer resort, continued. Although the Shanghai correspondent of the London Times reported that Changsha had been abandoned by the Communists following receipt of $500,000 ransom, later dispatches to the London evening newspapers declared the Reds were still in possession of the city. A nationalist gunboat in the river shelled the port in an effort to dislodge the Communists, causing casualties among the civilian population.

In the meantime, government troops of President Chiang Kai-shek turned their attention to the Communist threat, massing south of the Yangtze in Hunan in an effort to forestall the marauders' advance.

Government gunboats were reported bombarding Communist concentrations near Hsinchiaku, supporting infantry attacks. The government troops also were pressing Kiaochow railway to Shanghai and northward to the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, attempting to recapture Tsinan from the northern rebels.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Communist horde which swept into Changsha in Hunan province last week murdering and pillaging in its path, today was reported in Shanghai dispatches to the London Times to have evacuated the city of $500,000 for the ransom price of $500,000.

Government troops, it was stated, waited on the western out-

REPORT FIFTY DIE IN TYPHOON

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Two disastrous typhoons, striking a broad path across central Japan from the Pacific Ocean to the Sea of Japan, brought death to fifty persons and caused wide disaster, according to a dispatch today to the London Times.

Hondu on the eastern side was the heaviest hit, with the largest fatality list. Scores of buildings collapsed in the wake of the typhoon and many drownings added extensively to the casualties.

At Osaka 10,000 houses were reported flooded, with 3,000 buildings standing in water at Tokyo. The crops of Tottori, on the eastern seaboard of Japan, suffered heavily.

The typhoons are the second devastating disturbance to visit the island empire within a few weeks, previous ones having severely damaged southern Japan and taken scores of lives.

TWO RACE DRIVERS KILLED AT TRACK

GREENVILLE, O., Aug. 3.—Having been crushed beneath his racing car when he lost control and it overturned, H. K. Linebaugh, 34, of Knoxville, Tenn., is dead here today.

Linebaugh's death followed that of Kenneth C. Louder, 25, of Dearborn, Mich., who was killed at the speedway earlier in the day when his car collided with two others while they were warming up for the races. Louder's neck was broken in the crash.

AUTO KILLS DOCTOR

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—Dr. Fred M. Strouse, 50, of Philadelphia, died an hour after he was struck by an automobile today while crossing the street.

According to police the car was driven by James Ellis, 32, a chauffeur for Harry Aaronson, of Philadelphia. Aaronson was held in $5,000 bail on a technical charge of manslaughter.

EXTORTION VICTIM

Extortionists' plans to blackmail Mary Nolan, above, film actress, who was known as Imogene Wilson on Broadway, fail when government inspector officially states Miss Nolan is not a drug addict. Affidavits had been filed alleging she was. Miss Nolan tells of phone calls threatening the affidavits unless she paid $500.

BRITAIN PRAYS FOR MALE HEIR FOR DUKE AND DUCHESS YORK

Male Child Would Be Third In Line For English Throne

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The eyes of the British empire turned toward Glamis Castle, in the rugged hills of Scotland, today, where her royal highness, the Duchess of York, awaited the arrival of her second child.

An unspoken prayer was on every tongue that the new arrival would be a boy, thus furnishing an unbroken line of male succession to the throne of Great Britain and northern Ireland and the dominions beyond the seas.

While there is no written law in Britain giving a male heir precedence, ancient tradition demands that whenever possible a prince be given first place in the line of succession.

Thus if the Duchess of York's child should be a boy, he would immediately become third in line of succession to the throne, taking precedence over her daughter, the Princess Elizabeth, and his arrival would be greeted with joy and thanksgiving throughout the length and breadth of the British empire.

The 4-year old princess at present is third in line, falling immediately behind the prince of Wales and her father, the Duke of York, second son of King George and Queen Mary. Should the duchess' second child also be a girl, Princess Elizabeth would retain her place in the line of succession, with a strong probability she, someday, like her great-grandmother, the late Queen Victoria, might rule Britain.

The whole order of precedence in Britain today rests with the Prince of Wales. If he should marry before or after ascending the throne, the entire situation might be changed. His heirs, of course, would take precedence over all others.

At this time, however, it seems unlikely the prince will ever marry, so the burden of supplying the royal family with an heir rests upon the Duke and Duchess of York.

Hoary tradition will govern the procedure to be taken at the birth of the Duchess' child. In accordance with ancient custom, Home Secretary Clynnes will be present at Glamis Castle when the birth occurs. It will be his duty to attest arrival of the child, and to acquaint his government with the event, after which it will be announced to the nation.

There is some question as to whether Clynnes will actually be present in the room when the child arrives, which has been the custom in the past. The late Lord Oxford was present when the Prince of Wales was born, enconced behind a screen in the bedroom, but it is not known whether tradition will be adhered to with such fealty in the present instance.

PHYSICIAN DIES

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 4.—A cerebral hemorrhage which occurred while he was flocking with his dogs in the backyard of his home, today had caused the death of Dr. Walter E. Murphy, widely-known Cincinnati physician and sportsman.

COUNTY FAIR OPENS TUESDAY; PREDICT BIGGEST FAIR EVER

Reflects Progress Says Secretary; Entry List Large

"With the entry list surpassing any previous exposition within the experience of Secretary J. Robert Bryson, who has served in that capacity for the last ten years, Greene County's ninety-first annual fair will open informally Tuesday and last through Friday. Secretary Bryson disclosed Monday the entry list includes 145 head of cattle, 180 head of sheep, 165 head of hogs, sixty-five draft horses and a record-breaking total of 223 speeders in the class and stake events of the three-day shortship circuit harness meet to be held in conjunction with the fair.

"The county fair is truly the farmer's show window and reflects the progress of the county in which the fair is held," Secretary Bryson declares. "Our fair this year promises to be a well-balanced one, including a live stock show of the various breeds of animals. In the horse department, the Percheron, Belgian and grade draft classes with the saddle pony and horse classes gives ample classification for a wonderful show. The distinct Percheron and Belgian classes are a new feature of the fair this year."

In the pony class, the prizes have been extended to also include a fourth prize. Grant Miller, Beaver Creek Twp., will be the member in charge of this department.

The cattle show will include in the dairy classes the Holstein, Jersey and Polled Jersey and the Guernsey, which covers the breeds of dairy cattle that are in the greatest use in the county. In the beef breeds, the Shorthorns and Polled Durhams, the Aberdeen Angus and Galloways and the Herefords will make the three separate shows. L. B. Harner and F. B. Turnbull are the members in charge of this show.

Walter St. John, in charge of the sheep department, covers the

PLANE HITS CROWD; BOY DEAD, SIX HURT

FINDLAY, O., Aug. 4.—William M. Edwards, 9, is dead today and six persons are suffering from injuries as a result of an airplane crash into a crowd at the airport here Sunday. The Edwards boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Edwards, of Detroit.

Harry Rummell, one of the owners of the airport, was piloting the ill-fated plane. He was cut about the face, Mrs. William Dewey, 41, Hastings, Mich., was seriously hurt, suffering possible internal injuries. The others sustained minor injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Dewey are employed by a carnival company at the airport. Rummell was trying to take off when a wing dipped. The plane veered, hit a truck and then crashed into the crowd.

GARAGE-SITTING TEST HALTED

LONDON, O., Aug. 4.—Local youths aspiring to gain national renown in some unusual manner such as tree-sitting, today received a real jolt when they learned the sad fate of two young boys who attempted to establish a non-stop sitting endurance record.

The two boys, hoping to achieve eminence, decided to see just how long they could remain atop a local garage. Super-time came and the boys got hungry and belled for "fuel."

The garage owner, highly disgusted, hauled out his water hose and gave the somewhat disgruntled youngsters a cold-water bath and sent them home to bed.

FRENCH LABOR PLANS STRIKE

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Approximately 100,000 workers will join thousands of other strikers in northeastern France today in the dispute over wages and insurance problems affecting factory labor.

The general labor confederation in the towns of Roubaix, Tourcoing, Halluin and Lannoy has ordered its members to lay down their tools whenever increase in wages is refused. At Rouen, employers already have conceded a six per cent increase in wages to their workmen.

Textile workers were emphatic in their objections to the national insurance act with its "good conduct" clause which the government proposed to put in force. Under it an accumulated sum would be paid each year to employees by the employers provided attendance at work had been regular.

HEAT SPELL RAGING

FORMER MEXICAN PRESIDENT MARRIED

General Plutarco Elias Calles, 52, former president of Mexico and Leonor Llorente, 24, were married quietly Saturday while children and grandchildren of the former president looked on. A quiet civil ceremony was performed.

DAUGHTER OF XENIANS DIES FROM INJURIES FROM AUTO ACCIDENT

HE'S JUST A BOY!

PASADENA, Calif., Aug. 4.—Galush M. Cole, Pasadena centenarian, today was in hope that Zoro Agha, the Turk reputed to be 156 years old, would accept an invitation to his 104th birthday party on August 15.

"I would like to get some advice from him on how to live to an advanced age," Cole said. His party is expected to be a civil event.

BUSINESS APPEARS BETTER ACCORDING TO BANKING SURVEY

Manufacturing Will Resume; Money Is More Plentiful

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4.—Business conditions look to be improving due to increasing building construction and plentiful money, according to a survey today by the fourth district federal reserve bank.

Resumption of manufacturing in several lines is not far off, according to the report, which pointed out that the stocks of manufacturers and dealers is much lower now than in several months.

Reviewing the first six months of 1930, the federal reserve reported that production, consumption and employment could compare favorably with similar periods of all past years except 1929.

Due to the three-months drought, Ohio crops are not in the best of condition, the bank's survey said.

Steel construction, excepting that of pipes and structural shapes, declined during the summer months, it was reported.

Increasing business is reported from the tire and rubber industry. Banks show a lack of demand for commercial credit and a reduction in collateral loans to brokers in July, according to the survey.

The worst downward pressure was probably felt in the automobile industry, the report said. During the first five months sales were 21 per cent below those of last year.

UNCLE SAM GREATEST PRODUCER OF HOPS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Despite the theoretical absence of real beer in this country, Uncle Sam is still the greatest producer of hops in the world, according to an analysis of this industry which was announced today by Felix T. Pope, of the foodstuffs division of the commerce department.

Miss Mabel Wilson Claimed Sunday; Plan Funeral

Injuries received in an automobile accident early Saturday morning, north of Dayton, proved fatal to Miss Mabel Wilson, 18, daughter of James R. Wilson, 330 W. Church St., this city. Miss Wilson died Sunday morning at 4 o'clock at Miami Valley Hospital, where she had been removed, following the accident. She received a fractured skull and other injuries which caused her death.

Miss Wilson was an occupant of a car driven by Ernest Wade, 21, 134 S. Jefferson St., Dayton and also occupied by Miss Patay Sabatina, 19, and Reeder McCandless, 21, both of Dayton. Miss Sabatina also received a skull fracture and is not expected to live. The two young men were not hurt seriously.

The accident occurred at Cornette Drive and the New Troy Pike, when Wade lost control of the car and it hurtled over a ten-foot embankment, throwing its occupants twenty-five feet from the wreck. Wade, coroner E. E. Kimmel, Montgomery County, announced that he would start an investigation into the accident.

Miss Wilson had been employed in the dining room at Miami Valley Hospital for the last eighteen months. She is the daughter of James R. Wilson, who came to Xenia three months ago, when he purchased the C. E. Bradstreet Grocery. Besides her father Miss Wilson is survived by her stepmother and one sister, Mrs. Sininger, Bentonville, O.

The remains were removed to the Wilson home on W. Church St. Monday morning at 10 o'clock and later in the day were taken to Bentonville to the home of her sister where funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in the Bentonville Cemetery.

BREAKS AIR RECORD

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 4.—Stanley C. Huffman, Cincinnati aviator, today claimed a new altitude record of 15,000 feet. He made the ascent in a light commercial stock plane. The former record of 13,250 feet was held by Charles Kaszala, Polish flyer.

NATION GRIPPED BY HOT WEATHER WHILE RELIEF IS DISTANT

Mercury Soars Over 100; Lives, Crops Listed In Toll

By I. N. S.

An unprecedented heat wave continued to hold the United States in its grip today, taking its toll in lives and crops throughout the nation.

In parts of the middle west overcast skies and brief showers gave faint hope of relief but the major portion of the country appeared doomed to suffer indefinitely with no immediate relief in sight.

A brief shower struck Chicago area during the morning and more rain was expected before evening. The relief was not immediate, however, and, while the temperature did not near the 98 degrees that sent residents of the metropolitan area scurrying to lakes and resorts over the week end, the heat was still highly oppressive.

The highest temperature reported in the middle West Sunday was at Sac City, Ia., where the mercury zoomed to 113. Eleven Iowa cities were reported above the 100-degree mark and great damage was reported to the corn crop in that state.

Kansas City perspired Sunday under the rays of a sun that sent temperatures to a high mark of 107.3 degrees—the second highest mark in that city's history. The mean temperature there over the week end was 97, a new record for that vicinity. There were no deaths reported, however.

Temperatures hovered in the high nineties throughout Ohio, Indiana and Michigan Sunday with numerous unofficial recordings passing the 100 mark. Seven deaths from heat and drownings were reported in Michigan and five drownings were recorded in Ohio.

In the East, there was no relief whatever in sight. Temperatures along the Atlantic seaboard ranged from the low nineties to above the 100 point. In New York's metropolitan area, four drownings were reported although no deaths were attributed directly to the intense heat.

Crops in Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey were reported "burned up" and a water shortage was feared in Maryland. In Gettysburg, Pa., the water situation had become so acute that restrictions were placed upon its use. Five drownings and unestimated crop damage was reported by Boston and the New England area. At Boston the official Sunday high of 98 degrees was the highest the mercury had soared on an August 3, in fifty-six years.

Pennsylvania suffered a heavy toll in crops and lives over the

PRESIDENT'S ARMY PROMOTION POLICY RESENTED BY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—President Hoover has set the entire officer personnel of the army agog by ignoring the time-honored rule of seniority in the award of choice high commands, it was learned today.

The president has not only passed over generals who had been groomed for important posts by the general staff, but he has ignored the seniority rule so often that the army believes it has become a settled policy of the administration.

The new policy is declared by friends of the White House to be in the interest of efficiency—cutting the "red tape" of seniority to get the best man.

The army is tongue-tied. Even the highest ranking officers cannot openly take issue with the "commander-in-chief." But it is declared in army circles that congressional hearings on army matters next winter will disclose opposition to the administration's policies fully as keen as that of the navy general board to the London treaty.

Having been shocked by at least four appointments of major generals, the army is now buzzing with excitement over the impending choice of a new chief of staff to succeed General Charles P. Summerall in the fall. The post of chief of staff is doubly prized since congress provided the rank of full general go with it.

MURDERS SOLVED

Arrests and two confessions have cleared up northern Ohio's mystery murders. Shortly after a young woman found shot to death on a lonely road near Berea, O., had been identified as Mrs. Christina Colletti, 21, top, Tony Colletti, Cleveland, her husband, admitted the slaying. They had been married less than a month. Authorities also obtained a confession from William Evans, 26, Barborton, that he had slain a young woman whose body was found on a farm near Wadsworth, O., and who was identified as Miss Agrippina (Dolly) Kozlowski before the crime was solved. She was the mother of a little girl abandoned after the murder. The victim is shown below.

SEND 150,000 BACK TO WORK

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—An army of 150,000 workers today resumed their jobs in Michigan automobile factories following three weeks of idleness as the result of vacations and inventory.

"Plants reopening included the Ford, Chevrolet, Oakland-Pontiac, Packard, Graham Paige, General Motors Truck, Timken-Detroit Axle and the Motor Products Company factories.

Production of automobiles during July was the lowest in ten years according to the reports.

Predictions that the industry would recover from the depression and start booming were made by automotive leaders, including Ford officials and Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of the General Motors Corporation.

Refueling stops are to be made at Fairbury, Omak (Siberia), Tokio and Seattle. On each of the long unbroken hops, the pilots will take turns at the controls and sleep on top of specially-constructed fuel tanks.

The projected itinerary calls for 20,000 miles of travel in 200 hours of actual flying time. If successful, the plane will not only be the first to cross the Pacific without a stop, but also will break the globe girdling record of the Graf-Zeppelin.

Lundgren's engine is of 420 horsepower. The plane has a fuel capacity of 1100 gallons, and will weigh 12,000 pounds when fully loaded for the long Pacific hop. If it takes off with this load, it will establish a lift record for planes of its type.

ADMISSIONS CLEAR MYSTERY IN DEATHS IN NORTHERN OHIO

Husband And Lover Face Charges In Separate Killings

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4.—Working rapidly with all available forces thrown into the investigation, police officials of Cuyahoga and Medina Counties today had cleared the mysteries surrounding the murders of two young and pretty girls whose bullet-torn bodies were found last Friday and Saturday.

After a grilling of one hour, William Evans, 26, a machine foreman of Barborton, O., early today admitted that he shot and killed Miss Agrippina (Dolly) Kozlowski and left her body in a lonely oak field, four miles from Wadsworth Thursday night, according to Sheriff Lyman E. Buffington of Medina County.

Maintaining a stubborn silence through twenty-six hours of intense grilling, Tony Colletti, 21, finally made a full confession late yesterday that he murdered his 18-year-old bride of a month, Christina, on the Barrett Road, near Berea, where her body was discovered early Saturday morning, a short time after she had been riddled with five bullets.

Evans' confession came, police said, when he was confronted with the statement of Samuel Yakus, 23, also of Barborton, a fellow worker of Evans, who had admitted to police that he was the driver of the murder car and had named Evans as the actual slayer. Evans, Yakus told police, had been "going steady" with Miss Kozlowski for the past eight months and had known the girl about four years. Yakus said they hired a car in Akron, after obtaining a 25-20 rifle from a hardware store in Barborton, and drove the girl who carried Lillian Rose, her two-year-old daughter in her arms, towards Wadsworth.

When they reached the Herbert Williams farm, Yakus said he stopped the car and Evans and Miss Kozlowski got out of the car and walked through the oak field with Evans carrying the gun under his coat. In a few minutes Yakus related that he heard three shots and then Evans returned. The baby which was asleep in the car when Evans and the girl got out, was left on a doorstep at Wadsworth on their way back to Akron, according to the story. Yakus claimed he was to have received $20 for driving the car

ATTEMPT TO CIRCLE WORLD IN FIFTEEN DAYS STARTS SOON

Hollywood Aviator To Attempt To Break Record By Air

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—Ted S. Lundgren, Hollywood aviator and former army flying instructor, today planned to take off for New York at dawn tomorrow to start from there on an attempt to circle the world by air in fifteen days.

Announcement of Lundgren's plans followed weeks of secret preparation, including the construction of his single-engine monoplane. In New York he expects to sign contracts with Roger G. Williams, veteran long distance flyer, to be his co-pilot, and to engage a third pilot to act as radio man. The start is scheduled from Roosevelt Field Friday or Saturday to take advantage of the full moon.

Non-stop flights across both the Atlantic and Pacific are contemplated. The Pacific has never been conquered in a single flight, and a prize of $28,000 awaits the first flyer to accomplish the feat.

Refueling stops are to be made at Fairbury, Omak (Siberia), Tokio and Seattle. On each of the long unbroken hops, the pilots will take turns at the controls and sleep on top of specially-constructed fuel tanks.

The projected itinerary calls for 20,000 miles of travel in 200 hours of actual flying time. If successful, the plane will not only be the first to cross the Pacific without a stop, but also will break the globe girdling record of the Graf-Zeppelin.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN INSURANCE?

HOW MANY CITIZENS of Xenia, who own their homes, fail to take out fire insurance to protect themselves against a loss to their investment by fire?

HOW MANY AUTOMOBILE OWNERS refuse to take out fire and theft insurance as a protection against the loss of their car?

HOW MANY HEADS OF FAMILIES decline to insure their lives in order that their loved ones will be provided for after their death?

THE PERCENTAGE is exceptionally small. Any insurance man whom you happen to know will give you the figures. They will not be at all surprising to you, because insurance is recognized as an economic necessity nowadays.

IF IT IS ESSENTIAL that we insure our home against fire, or our car against theft, or our life against the poverty of our family, is it not just as essential that we insure our Community against economic depression? For the breakdown of our local commercial structure would be just as disastrous to us as individuals as the loss of our home or our automobile, or the leaving of our loved ones penniless.

SUCCESS of local business enterprises is the only insurance that we have against economic depression in Xenia. And strangely enough, it is the only free insurance on the market today. For local business success is founded upon local patronage of Home Owned Stores, and it costs not a cent more to trade with your local merchant than it does to trade with a Foreign Owned Chain Store.

BUT THE SIMPLE FACT that your money goes into local stores, keeps it in local banks and allows it to be handed out again to local industry and enterprise in the form of loans. Your money is kept in local circulation and your insurance against local business depression is provided. You don't scoff at insurance as an economic necessity. Then provide an insurance fund for your Community by patronizing your Home Owned Stores. The premium is low and the dividend is high. You are both the recipient of the dividend on your premium and the beneficiary of the policy. Trade from your Independent Merchant and insure Xenia.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

DELIVERANCE FROM ANXIETY—Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit into his stature? And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, now they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; And yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.—Matthew 6:27, 28, 29.

POPULARITY

Many quiet and reserved people wonder why it is that certain persons have such an easy gift of acquiring popularity. Young people find in schools and colleges that some popular girls and fellows have a magnetic attraction, while others pass relatively unnoticed.

It was recently remarked that at a certain summer resort there have been about 100 girls and 20 young men. Yet two of those girls would have about 10 of the much sought after boys buzzing after them all the time, while the remaining 98 maidens were vainly having to struggle to get any attention from the other 10 boys. What is the gift which enabled those girls thus to win all this attention? And it is not surprising that those that lack it get sore at times, and think that favors are poorly distributed.

The folks who always have a gracious smile for everyone, who are always cheerful, are apt to have plenty of friends. There is something about their society that makes other people confident and happy. The quality of geniality can be cultivated and is valuable.

It can be overcome. Some folks make themselves tiresome by noisy laughter and efforts to attract attention. They would be more popular as quiet and silent people, than as constant seekers after the spotlight.

Also some folks sacrifice principle for popularity. They are glad to join in with any suggestion that may be made. That policy lands some of the older folks in political office, but it does not often carry them far, as a superficial veneering is no substitute for good solid stuff underneath.

Popularity comes so easily to many folks, that they feel they do not need to work. They make their way easily in society, but out in the business world they have to produce results. Smiles are good and helpful, but it also takes sweat.

AT THE INTERSECTION

An automobile driver remarks that when he approaches a street intersection, and sees another car coming on the cross street, he always gives the other car the right of way, unless it seems to be twice as far from the meeting point as he is. If he seems to be 50 feet from the intersecting point while the other car appears to be 90 feet, he lets the other car pass.

This may be considered too cautious. Yet such a driver is not likely to have accidents. It takes but two or three seconds to slow up and let the other fellow pass, and nothing is injured unless it may be his pride. It is cheaper to hurt that than to break someone's bones or smash up your car.

One excellent reason for this plan is that in the second of time when a motorist has to decide whether to go ahead or not, it is very easy to make a mistake about the speed of the approaching car. These mistakes are extremely costly at times.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

HEART OR MIND?

It is possible to see this as an age of intellectual progress and of mechanical progress, but to see that there is little progress of the heart. We can become smarter, faster, keener, without becoming kinder. Well-known New York minister, Morris Lichtenstein, gives us much to ponder over when he says:

"Our civilization is one-sided. It emphasizes only one phase of our individuality. We are achieving more and more along mechanical and intellectual lines, but we are permitting our feelings to grow more and more shallow. We are becoming keener, shrewder, but less kind, less sympathetic. The heart is being atrophied through lack of exercise.

"Because we are losing this power our social intercourse is becoming more a matter of form. In our social relationship we fear more to be guilty of an impropriety than we fear to wound the feelings of a fellow-man; we are more in terror of making a 'break' than of hurting a friend."

JOB MEN

The trouble with too many men in public life or in high places everywhere is that they have no imagination. They are job hunters and job getters. By attention to detail they get a job and hold it. So far so good—but not good enough. It is the quality of imagination which makes us see things as they might be. It is imagination which makes programs and policies. It is imagination which lifts us to new levels and sets our feet upon the road to the more perfect world.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Wicks, dean of religion in Princeton university, says 90 per cent of the respectable, conventional, church-going people today are as confused when it comes to their thought about religion and their faith as are the young folks who seem so doubtful about everything. The elders cover up their confusion. There isn't much straight thinking in either old or young. It is not given us to know the truth, but it is too bad we cannot be a little more clear about what we do and do not believe.

Churches, through their leadership, are responsible for much of this confusion of thought. Church leaders, even those who think straight, rarely have the courage to state their faith and their beliefs. Read the creeds of various churches and find them full of things that few now believe. Those who at least think they know better never get enough power in church councils to bring about a restatement of faith. And there is nothing that many churches need more than a re-statement of principles that will appeal to intellect and reason.

LITTLE BY LITTLE

Well, O. W. R., nobody knows by little. Little by little we know more. Anyhow, don't you think it's probable we came from somewhere, are going somewhere, and that humankind is getting a bit smarter, a bit kinder? Yes, the world falls below what your idealism would have it. But idealism rises high in spots, showing us what can happen. Tell the wise Chinaman something astounding or extraordinary and he says: "Can happen." It's his answer for everything. Well, life can improve. Civilization can go on—and get better. Can happen.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS
WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

Can a giraffe make any sound? The giraffe has no voice, in the sense that a horse can whinny or neigh, but its cough is accomplished by a harsh sound.

Ingagi
What is an Ingagi? Ingagi was alleged, in a recent movie, to be a native African name for gorillas. It is not listed in any standard work of reference, however, and as the authenticity of the film has been questioned, the shadow also falls on the word Ingagi.

Aged Juniper Tree
In which one of the western states is a juniper tree said to be the oldest living tree? What is its age and size?

In the northern Utah mountains is an old juniper tree known as Old Utah, which is one of the oldest living things in the world, if not the oldest. The circumference is 21 feet 6 inches, and it stands about 40 feet high. An estimate of its age, made from a chip cut from a cleft in the trunk is 3,485 years.

York School
Where is the York Industrial school? The Alvin York Industrial Institute is at Jamestown, Tenn.

Canning Liver
How can liver be canned? The bureau of home economics of the department of agriculture recommends that the same procedure be followed in canning liver as in canning pork. No experiments in canning liver have ever been made by the department.

Pen Names
Is it legal for any writer or artist to assume a pen name? Any name may be adopted by any person so long as it is not used for fraudulent purpose, but the baptismal name must be used in legal transactions to avoid implication of fraud.

Mead
Thomas Hardy mentions the beverage "mead" in his "Three Strangers." How is it made? Mead is a fermented beverage made of a mixture of two pounds of honey for each gallon of water. A pinch of cream of tartar should be added to the honey-water mixture, which should be warmed for 15 minutes. Whole spices—cloves, cinnamon, rosemary, mace—should be added. If a ferment is added, a beverage of alcoholic content will result. In medieval times it was used to mix with other fermented beverages.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

ANOTHER MYSTERY

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—That's an ancient yarn; but I thought of it the other day when I read the testimony of Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel.

His salary, he said, is $12,000 a year. But his "bonus" is something to dream about for it adds from $75,000 to $150,000 more to his income annually.

Explaining this, he said: "The factor used to determine my bonus is 1 1/2 per cent."

"One and one-half per cent of what?" he was asked. "I don't know," answered Mr. Grace.

EX-SHOP LIFTER

So long as we're talking of Chasers such like, hark to the tale of Minnie:

She's the wife of a one-time pug. Fifteen years ago his name was uttered with respect in fistic circles. I mean, of course, respect for his fistic ability. Morally he was a leper; and when he quit the squared circle he and Minnie embarked in numerous exploits involving Queer Percentages.

What finally became of him I never learned. Min developed into a first-class "booster," which, in the jargon of the Lower Levels, means a shoplifter.

A year or so ago she fell ill, and, lying on a hospital bed staring at the ceiling day after day, she got her first real dose of honest introspection. She was getting along in life. Pretty soon, some day, she'd fumble a pass, face an unsympathetic judge—and then what?

When she had recuperated her health she presented herself to the head of a detective agency whose business, among other things, is safe-guarding certain large New York department stores against pilferers.

They were sceptical over the yarn that she had turned over a new leaf but took her on, as a store detective, on a chance.

Her second day in one of the biggest Boob Bazaars on the Avenue, who should she bump into but "French" Camille one of the

FEDERAL PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE THINKS AGED VISITOR FROM TURKEY MAY BE EXAGGERATING UNWITTINGLY

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Without imputing to 156-year-old (so he says) Zoro Agha the slightest intention to deceive, the U. S. public health service's experts on problems of senility evidently want considerable evidence before wholly accepting assurances that America's elderly Turkish or Kurdish visitor really dates back to 1774—that is, so to speak, in an unbroken line.

"True enough," agrees Assistant Surgeon General R. C. Williams, "if he fought in the Napoleonic wars he must be pretty old."

"But it sometimes happens," continued the doctor, "that a very aged individual confuses his own experiences in his earlier years with the experiences of his grandfather, which maybe the latter related to him when the grandchild was quite young."

"It does not necessarily follow," explained the physician, "that the grandchild, as he in turn becomes a grandparent or great-grandparent, deliberately means to claim, as part of his personal history, what in reality was part of the personal history of his forbear."

"Rather, it may be that he began by simply wishing it were so, and gradually, by a subconscious process, with advancing years and a breaking down of the boundaries of memory, comes honestly to believe that it was."

"Supposing such a romance to start with an originally vivid stock of tales, told to him at first hand at an impressionable age—perhaps to have had subsequently a stirring career of his own—and to be himself a graphic story teller—it is easy to imagine him as expressing himself very convincingly."

"Of course, I've no means of knowing," admitted Dr. Williams, "that Mr. Agha is not actually 156, but I believe he holds the record since Biblical times, if he is."

"It also is a fact that illiterate, primitive folk, as age advances on them, have a tendency to add five or ten years at a time, occasionally."

"Often they are doubtful just when they did start—only know that, at such-and-such a time they were 'about' so old. Up to middle life they probably try to guess accurately, but as they begin to grow unquestionably old, they likewise begin to grow proud of it. A certain prestige goes with age. A point arrives when they start to feel an urge to exaggerate."

"It's quite common among old dinky 'uncles' and 'aunties' in the south."

Dr. Williams has small faith in longevity prescriptions—special diets, forms of exercise or pet abstinences.

begin to become so numerous beyond the third generation" backward that it is difficult to follow the sequence much further than that is likely himself to be long-lived if he escapes accidents.

"It is no particular merit of the individual's own, or of his way of comporting himself. He simply happens to come of a line to which stamina is natural."

After all, what is old age? "It's in the blood vessels," said the doctor.

"You know how a rubber band gradually loses its elasticity. Little by little it snaps back with less and less vigor. Finally it ceases to snap back at all. Ultimately it breaks the minute one tries to stretch it."

Even so with the arteries. "Slowly they lose the elasticity adequately to carry the blood stream—and we age, as the life-renewing supply of blood in the brain, and all the rest of the body, dwindles."

And 156 years is an impossible length of time for one equipment of blood vessels to continue equal to this duty?

"I wouldn't say impossible," replied the doctor, "but improbable."

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

"IF WISHES WERE HORSES"—Queen Ant rolled over on her back and looked up at the skies.

"It would be wonderful to be sailing along under the clouds," sighed she. Then Queen Ant rolled back again and hopped to her feet.

"If wishes were horses, beggars might ride," said she, briskly. "At least, without wings, I shall never meet the same sad fate as my best friend who was gobbled up by a blackbird. That's something to be thankful for. I was sorry to lose my chum, but her fate taught me a lesson. Right then and there I made up my mind that the best thing I could do was to do as my mother and grandmother had done before me—be satisfied to be a Mother Ant and to stay on the ground where I belonged. So now I've built my home and soon I am going to settle down and be a respected member of my community."

"Good for you!" cried Worker Ant. "Sometimes Queen Ants do not decide to do their duty until it is too late!"

"I take off my hat to you," cried Peter. "I never met anyone with more courage!"

"Courage? Why, what have I done?" asked Queen Ant, wondering. Peter patted her on the back.

"Given up a good time to do the right thing by your family. I'm sure I had wings to fly with. I'd never tear them off as you have. It must take courage and lots of it to decide to spend one's whole life upon the ground when one might be flitting through the air!" Ant nodded.

"You're right, I guess it does," said she. "I've a one good thing about it, though. It really doesn't hurt to tear off one's wings. I was afraid it would. All I had to do was to press the edges of them on the ground, hard, and they unhooked. I'm glad the workers didn't pull them off. I should never have held up my head after such a disgrace."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Honeydew Melon Slices
Beef Parsley Potatoes
Peas Cucumber Salad
Berry Paradise Pie
Coffee Milk
OR
Cheese Souffle
Tomato and Pea Molded Salad
Drop Biscuits Butter Jelly
Lemon Pie
Tea Milk

These two menus are suitable for luncheon or supper. Fresh cherries, raspberries, blackberries or blueberries may be used in the paradise pie.

Today's Recipes

Berry Paradise Pie—About one hour before dinner fill a previously baked pie shell with whole, unsugared berries. Pour over the berries a boiled frosting made as follows: Boil together one cup granulated sugar, one-eighth teaspoon cream of tartar and one-fourth cup water. When it thickens from the spoon, pour very steadily into a beaten egg white and continue beating until fluffy. Flavor with vanilla and cool. When ready to serve, top with one-half pint whipped cream.

Lemon Pie—Put the juice and grated rind of one lemon on one cup of sugar. Add yolk (beaten) of two eggs. Tablespoon of cornstarch (dissolved in cold water). Then add one cup of boiling water. Put on stove and cook until thick. Have crust cooked. Beat whites stiff. Add two tablespoons of powdered sugar to each egg white. Spread on pie and brown.

Suggestions

Here's a pleasant drink to serve to your guests on a hot night:

Spiced Gingerale
Mix all together, four whole cloves, one-fourth teaspoon allspice, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-third cup honey, juice and grated rind of two lemons, one cup orange juice, one cup pineapple sirup, one cup water and let stand in the ice box for at least an hour or more. Strain. Add two pints of cold ginger ale and serve. Makes 12 to 15 punch glasses or eight regular glasses.

Stuffed Tomato—Scald, peel and scoop out centers of medium-sized tomatoes. Sprinkle inside of tomato with salt and pepper. Fill with cottage cheese mixed with chopped pimento, stuffed olives and chopped nuts, using one-fourth cup chopped olives and one-fourth cup chopped nuts to each cup of cottage cheese. Thoroughly chill filled tomatoes before serving.

SERVE WITH PORK OR BACON FRIED APPLES

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Quarter six apples, removing the seeds, but not peeling. Cut in rather thin slices. Melt two tablespoons fat in a frying pan; bacon fat or butter may be used. Add the apples, sprinkle with a fourth teaspoon of salt and one-half cup sugar. Add a very small amount of water to prevent burning and cook slowly until tender.

Don't Get A Phobia

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"Some time ago I wrote for your pamphlet on Reducing and Gaining. I started by the liquid diet, but later I started to eat everything but sugar and bread. And in five months I have lost 45 pounds (from 192 to 147 pounds; I am 48 years old, 5 ft. 6 in. tall). Even though I now eat almost everything, I am still losing weight, and I think I am getting too thin, but can't seem to stop. What do you think is the trouble? I don't want to eat sugar again because I am afraid of diabetes. I was examined by a physician and he said I had no sugar in the urine. Please tell me how to test my urine for sugar, myself. Please answer me, as I am so worried." MRS. M.

According to the rule of allowing 110 pounds for 5 ft. in height (in stocking feet) and 5 1-2 pounds for each inch over, your normal weight should be around 154, but we allow 5 per cent above, or below, that figure, on account of the framework, so probably 147 is all right for you. If you do not wish to reduce any further, simply force yourself to eat a little more, and perhaps rest a little more.

Take a little more butter and cream in your diet. And don't be afraid of sugar. It isn't sugar alone that causes diabetes. Don't get a phobia on this question. Overeating in general, enough to cause overweight, will undoubtedly cause diabetes, but that is not the only cause, by any means; otherwise all overweight persons would have it, and, of course, this is not true. There must be some other factor present, which in conjunction with the overweight brings on the diabetes. But 75 per cent of the diabetes, according to Joslin, are overweight, before the disease manifests itself, and no doubt the prevention of overweight would prevent the already weakened pancreas from finally failing to make the sugar metabolism.

We have a pamphlet on Kidney and Bladder Disorders which gives a simple test for detecting the presence of sugar and albumen in the urine. We also have a list of books on diabetes, written by authorities for the layman. To obtain these, see column rules.

Mrs. E.: I don't believe in the efficacy of any dissipated food in capsules. The elements dried out in that manner are probably devoid of a large part of the vitamins, and certainly devoid of the bulk that the normal intestinal tract needs.

From the description you give of your daughter's undersize, I judge there may be a glandular disturbance. I would like her to be examined by a physician who specializes in glandular disorders. It may be possible that some medication will stimulate the ductless glands so she would grow more normally.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which will help you. See column rules.

F. L.: Our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women gives the home treatment of that slight discharge you speak about. This pamphlet also takes up the subject of the menopause (change of life) which so many women have written in on. See column rules for obtaining this.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a "fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, 10 cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, The Urinary System. Address Dr. Peters Bureau, in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

A Very Trying Situation

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS VIRGINIA LEE: First of all, I am a young girl of past 14 and am very anxious to know about my future. But the difficulty is that my sisters always borrow my clothes and do not take care of them. I try to be particular when I wear them, and as soon as my sisters wear them they are almost ruined. The fact is, that every time they borrow my clothes, I tell my mother and she just thinks it's all right."

"So, dear Virginia, would you please give me a little advice as to what you think I should do?"

"ANXIOUS BERTHA"

It's a very trying situation, dear, and I hardly know what to tell you. I am one of those pernickety people who are not very keen about having others wear her clothes, and so can sympathize whole heartedly with you. However, neither of my sisters was near my age so I did not have that problem to contend with, and I'm sure if I had that my mother would have helped me to get my property rights in my own clothes.

What to do is the question. Raving won't do any good. I'm afraid, so we had better stop that. Appealing to mother has done no good, so stop that. You couldn't lock your clothes in the closet, could you, and only let the girls have them on condition they be returned in good condition? If you can't, I don't see just what you can do, except to praise and thank them if they do happen to take them and return them in good condition. It is inexcusable for people to borrow other people's clothes except under very unusual circumstances, and then they should be given back in at least as good condition as they were in when borrowed, and better, if possible. Tell them I said it shows very bad manners and ill-breeding to do as they have been in the habit of doing.

Thank you, dear. That's the spirit!

"Dear Miss Lee: George Jr., sure loves to brag about what a fast worker he is. I am just another unskissable girl."

"I am 17 and have never had a date and don't intend to, for I chum with my mother, and she is a real pal."

"I hope to see this letter printed soon so George Jr., may read it. Wishing all the success and happiness to you, Miss Virginia Lee, and every unskissable girl, I remain, too,

"Just Another Unskissable Girl."

Long Hair Needs Care For Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

When I think of the long-hair era that appears to be approaching, I feel a bit uneasy. Just what is it going to mean to hair health? I grant you that some of the bobbed heads of hair have been atrocious. But the condition of the long tresses, about which women used to boast in past years, was equally as atrocious.

Remember the woman whose sole claim to distinction was that her hair was so long that she could "sit on it"? And what hair, when the numerous combs and hairpins had been removed! Broken, short ends around the face, from too hot curling irons. And the extreme ends scraggly, ugly wisps ending in one or two extra long locks that had survived the brutal combing and waving. To me such a head of hair is far from laudable.

The shampoos with long hair were never very numerous. The drying process occupied too long a time. A day had to be set aside for the shampooing, and half the day was spent on the back porch in the sunshine. The brushing, so essential to the health and beauty of the hair, had, of necessity, to be strenuous, and was therefore often omitted.

If we are going to have long hair, let us have beautiful long hair without any detrimental factors. Let's forego the distinction of having the longest hair, if it means the kind of a mop I have described above.

For the majority of us, long hair means the absolute necessity of a permanent wave. And for all of us, it means that the ends of the hair must be kept even. Then the hair will be of an even thickness from scalp to tip ends.

Some persons will have to clip the hair ends every two months. Often, however, especially in the case of healthy hair, once a year will suffice.

Shampoo your long hair more frequently, and brush it more thoroughly and vigorously than you did your short tresses. Remember that the more hair you possess, the greater amount of dust and dirt that will accumulate.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Superfluous Hair

Ruth, Z. A. M. and R. R. Jones: It is safe to use a depilatory on legs and arms and a bleach on the face. Superfluous hair can be removed permanently by expert use of the electric needle. I would advise you to consult a chiropodist about your feet.

Make-up

Jane, Blue-Eyes and V. O.B.: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge, and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring. Do the exercise for the lower part of the body twice daily.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

There is every possibility that the track record of 2:06 1/4 at the Xenia fairgrounds, established in 1928 by Becky Beall, may be lowered this week at the three-day short-haul circuit meet to be held in conjunction with the ninety-first Greene County Fair.

Counterpart, ten-year-old roan wiggler of Dr. H. M. Parshall, Urbana reinsman, which lowered the track record on the Clinton County track last week and set a mark of 2:04 1/2, is counted upon to do the record-breaking. The aged stallion raced at the local fair last year but was unexpectedly beaten by True Grattan in two out of three heats.

Following is the three-day program:

2:15 Pace (stake) $600
2:22 Trot (added money) $300
3-year-old pace (stake) cup and $500

Bob Yeakley, home run merchant of Geysers, is still the Babe Ruth of the National Softball League with six consecutive hits in the game with ten and "Happy" Davis with eight. All are Lang players.

Ruse, by the way, established a record for the season when he made six consecutive hits in the game with Carroll-Binder Friday eve. The previous record for consecutive hitting was five straight singles by Prof. H. E. Seall, of Geysers.

These miniature golf courses are composed of artificial hazards, but that does not mean that the natural hazards are not present. Howell "Sam" Huston found this out the other night when playing the pipe shot on the No. 11 green of the Henrie Brothers course. He made the pipe, but the ball failed to roll out on the green. Homer Henrie was summoned and he dropped another ball into the pipe. Almost immediately a huge torrent came out of the pipe onto the green and the two balls followed him. The toad had gone in the opening for a nap and refused to be bothered when the first ball hit him, but he declined to be a target for a barrage. The name of the toad was not learned but it was definitely established that he was not Lon Chaney.

SOFTBALL LOOP STANDINGS

In order to avoid conflict with the Greene County Fair, only two regularly scheduled league softball games will take place this week, one on Monday and the other on Tuesday night.

Kiwanis-Rotary will meet Company L Monday evening and the guard unit, which returned Sunday from its trip to Camp Perry, may have found its period of training so taxing that it will come through with its first victory of the season.

Tuesday night the D. T. C. Club faces the revamped Graham Paints and a Graham victory would not be unexpected in view of its recent victory over the Clinton Supply Co. at Wilmington.

The remaining three regular playing nights of the week will probably see exhibition games played each night at the athletic field. League standings:

Merchants Defeat White Sox As Series Opens

MINNERY SPARKLES IN DEBUT; PERMITS ONLY SIX SAFETIES

Wildness Of Dayton Pitcher Costly In 9 To 3 Win

Wildness on the part of Gray, White Sox pitcher, contributed in no small way to the 9 to 3 victory registered by the Xenia Merchants over the strong Dayton colored team in the opener of a three-game series Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Gray held the Merchants without a hit or run for the first four innings but the Merchants chased four runs over the plate in the fifth, added another in the seventh and four additional tallies in the eighth.

Minnery, former Dayton Shroyer Cubs hurler, made his debut on the mound for the Merchants and was invincible for six innings. In the seventh the White Sox tabbed a run without making a hit. Walker, first batter in this round, was safe on Tangeman's error and raced to second after Walker had caught Gray's foul fly. He took third on an out at first. B. Fields was hit by a pitched ball and the double steal worked to perfection. Walker scoring and B. Fields getting to second safely.

The final two Dayton runs came in the eighth. Smith led off with a single but was forced at second by Pate, who then stole second. Long walked and when Cyphers mused up Parks' grounder Pate scored and Long took third. Walker's fly plated Long. Minnery allowed the White Sox only six hits, fanned five batters and walked three.

Gray, Dayton hurler, issued eight bases on balls, struck out six, hit a batter and emitted a wild pitch all in an afternoon's work.

Gray made the mistake of walking Weller, first batter to face him in the fifth and four runs resulted. Minnery followed with a single, sending his batter's mate to third. Johnson popped to the catcher. Ruse forced Minnery at second. Weller scoring on the play, Ruse stole second, reached third on an error by the visiting catcher and scored on Durnbaugh's single. Then Moore, right fielder, smacked a home run, the only circuit blow of the game. With two down, the Merchants scored again in the seventh on three straight singles by Moore, Tangeman and Gibbs.

Just to be on the safe side the local nine marked up another quarter of runs in the eighth. Weller and Minnery drew bases on balls and Johnson singled, scoring the former. Ruse fanned for the third time but Durnbaugh cleared the bases with a triple and scored himself on a passed ball.

The Merchants gathered only eight hits, of which Durnbaugh and Moore each made two. Mike Weller, catcher, notorious for working opposing pitchers for bases on balls drew three walks in four times up and scored two runs.

The victory was the second straight for the Merchants over the White Sox but the game on the preceding Sunday, resulting in a 5 to 2 triumph for the locals, was only a practice tilt. The Dayton team will appear here again next Sunday.

MECHANIC DEAD IN PARACHUTE JUMP
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 4.—Funeral arrangements were being made today for Willard Immel, 24, Kingston, airplane mechanic, who plunged 1,000 feet to his death near here late Sunday. Immel is thought to have become confused while making his initial parachute jump. Investigation after Immel's death disclosed that he had failed to properly pull the cord that would have opened his parachute.

The accident occurred shortly before 7 p. m. near Port Columbus, Immel falling into a field a short distance south of the port. His body was seriously crushed. It will be buried at Kingston where funeral services will be held.

Licensed as a commercial pilot, Immel was employed as Junior mechanic for the Curtiss-Wright flying service.

Spying On Sports

by BILL RITT

Central Press Sports Editor
The National League, graybeard of baseball circuits, is reverting to form again this season. Pitching ability is paramount. Hitting is secondary. Fielding is third.

The two prize examples of this are Philadelphia and Cincinnati. The Phillies are so far ahead of the other clubs in the exact science of effectively merging horsehide and ash it isn't even funny.

And the Reds have the best defense in the league, a clock-work outfield that is the bane of base runners.

However, just look at them. The Phillies, with a team batting average that persists in hanging around the astounding mark of .325, are tallenders and the Reds seem to be set on displacing the Quaker City crew in the cellar position, if that feat is possible.

With a bit better pitching the Phils and Reds could very well be in the race. As it is the Phils' tremendous batting power represented by such sluggers as Klein, O'Doul, Sherlock, Friberg and Whitney is going to waste through lack of effective hurling. The same is true of the fine work of the speedy Ford-Durocher-Stripp infield combination of the Reds.

Meanwhile, the Cubs, fifth in batting and fifth in fielding, are in the thick of the first place fight solely because of effective pitching. Brooklyn, sixth in fielding, is getting the best hurling in the circuit, backed up by sufficient batting power. You don't have to read very far to find where Brooklyn stands in the pennant race.

Harry Heilmann, Cincinnati's

premier batsman, has still a good distance to go to achieve his heart's desire: the honor, or whatever you want to call it, of being the first man to lead both major leagues in batting.

The thought that it lay within his power to turn the trick prevented Harry from being too downhearted when the Tigers let him slip out of the American League last winter and he was picked up by the struggling Reds for the current National League campaign.

Harry has been shooting around the .365 mark this season. That's a fine average, but in these days of tall and frequent hits it isn't good enough to win a championship.

Heilmann is running some twenty points ahead of his 1929 average. His last year in the American League, Harry's batting eye appears to be good as ever though he has lost some of his speed. Proof of this can readily be seen in the fact that the current season came to the halfway mark without Harry registering a single stolen base.

Far above the level of the individual batting lists are the rivals he will have to beat out if he tops the heap this year. Lefty O'Doul and Chuck Klein are running 35 points ahead of the Red star who also trails Bill Terry of New York and Paul Waner of Pittsburgh by 25 points and Babe Herman of Brooklyn by 30.

The addition of the hard-hitting Ike Boone to the Brooklyn staff adds just another worry for Harry and his title hopes. If Boone keeps up his early pace he is going to be a very hard man to out-hit.

Nope, this just doesn't look like Harry's year, after all.

GIVE BROOKLYN THE PENNANT BEFORE IT TAKES IT SAYS DAVE

By DAVID J. WALSH

International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Pull many an August champion has finished away up the track in October. I'll admit, and doubtless the man who crosses the bridge before he gets to it needs must be a passable swimmer. Yet I'm not so certain today that it is too early to give the pennant to the National League to the Brooklyn club. For one thing, it is my policy to be very liberal with anything that doesn't belong to me. For another, it may simplify matters by giving the pennant to Brooklyn before Brooklyn takes it.

We have been regaled these many weeks with prophetic utterances, to the effect that either the Cubs or Giants or both would ride the Dodgers down when the time comes. The time came yesterday and all that happened was that the Giants blew a game to the Dodgers behind four-hit pitching and the Cubs took one on the bower from the Pirates. The result? With two-thirds of the season completed, the Dodgers are three games in front. I am beginning to suspect that they will stay there.

About once in every decade, a so-called team of destiny suddenly finds itself standing before the shrine of fame and, forthwith, it decides that it can't go wrong. Such a club was the Braves of 1914. The Cincinnati Reds of 1919 was another. The Brooklyn club of today looks the part of the third. It has only a fair outfield, its infield never will be famed in sonnet and song. Its pitching is uncertain. As a matter of fact, all it can do is win.

It has been doing that since early in June when, finding itself in last place and not exactly surrounded about it, either, it suddenly began to win one game after another during a western trip. In consequence, it went all the way to the head of the league before it got back to Ebbets Field and nobody since has been able to shake it down on the ground.

These pennant races often seem to be decided by fate, and so if the Cubs don't repeat this time, may be they can charge it off to the unseen hand which, without any particular reason, decides that one is to win and another to lose. If we are to judge by the various developments to date, a Brooklyn victory in the National League would seem to have been ordained this year.

How else can we account for the fact that seemingly every time the Dodgers lose, the Cubs lead orkly with their chin, too? That, when the Cubs won four out of five in Brooklyn recently, the vagaries of the percentage table stepped in to give the Dodgers the moral comfort of remaining in the lead by a fractional point? And what of those successive shutouts by Hollis Thurston last week at a time when the Dodge staff was shot full of apertures, as Miste Tunney might say? Thurston, a chronic failure for years, becomes an overnight success at the most opportune moment in the pennant race. The circumstance is typical. Every time Brooklyn has needed something this year, Brooklyn gets it—the miracle of Wright's recovery, the regeneration of Luque, the development of Lopez, the pinch-playing of Finn at second base and, lastly, the club's very admirable ability to win whenever its lead was definitely threatened.

It all turns of he Midas touch which turns everything to gold. Nowhere more than in baseball is this propitious bit of superstition and psychology more literally encouraged.

ST. XAVIER RAISED TO UNIVERSITY NOW

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 4.—St. Xavier College here has graduated from the status of a college and hereafter will be known as Xavier University, according to an announcement which was made by the institution's officials today.

The change from the classification of "college" to that of "university," will give fuller scope to the institution's activities and will coordinate them more effectively, officials said.

AUTO KILLS CHILD

SANDUSKY, O., Aug. 4.—Harvey Parman of Huron, whose automobile killed John Glass, 7, of Sandusky here yesterday, was exonerated from all blame in the boy's death by county officials here today.

HOMER WINS BATTLE FOR JAMESTOWN IN TEN-INNING GAME

Catcher Kaiser was the hero of a 4 to 3 decision registered by the Jamestown Independents over the Benney Athletic Club, semi-pro nine of Dayton Sunday afternoon at Leach Park, Jamestown, in a ten-inning contest.

The visitors had scored one run in the first half of the tenth and with defeat staring his team in the face, Kaiser broke up the game with a home run, scoring Trout, who had singled, ahead of him, in the last half of the stanza.

The Benney A. C. nine, booked in place of the Dayton Shamrock Eagles, who were forced to cancel Sunday, put up a great game and outlasted Jamestown, eleven to nine.

The visitors scored twice in the first round when Kimmerle hit a homer with one aboard but the Independents squared the count in the third. The next six innings were scoreless for both teams.

Evans pitched for Jamestown and was opposed by Sharp, the rival hurler, engaging in a tight mound duel.

Next Sunday the Independents will meet South Solon at Jamestown, play being called at 2:45 p. m. Score by innings:

Dayton . . . 200 000 0001-3 11 1
Jamestown . . . 002 000 0002-4 9 1
Innings: Dayton: Sharp and Kaiser.

LOW SCORE HOLDERS AWARDED PRIZES

Eddie Montgomery was announced as the winner of the $5 gold place offered as a weekly prize at the Henrie Bros. miniature golf course for the lowest score recorded in the men's division during last week. Eddie's card showed only forty-one strokes. Mrs. Paul Petz shot a fifty for low score in the women's division and received a linen lunch-cloth, while Lawrence Ball was awarded $1.50 for having the low score in the class for players under 16 years of age. He had a score of forty-two.

MANY AT OPENING OF BOBBY LOU LINKS

More than 350 people pattered around the eighteen-hole Bobby Lou miniature golf course Sunday, the occasion being the official opening of the new midge links, located just north of the Xenia Country Club entrance on the Springfield Pike. Competition for the prize of $5, offered for the lowest score, was keen and three players tied for the award. Clarence Brennan, 517 N. West St., Albert LaMar, 705 S. Detroit St., and Robert Downing, W. Second St., each recorded a forty-four.

COMPANY RETURNS

Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, arrived in Xenia Sunday from Camp Perry O. where the local National Guard unit has been encamped for the last two weeks taking its annual summer training course in military tactics. Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, commanding officer of the company, who spent his vacation with the guardsmen at Camp Perry, also returned to his duties Monday.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Stock prices were inclined slightly upward in another dull and featureless market today. There were no developments of importance in any of the basic industrial lines, though the resumption of production in the automobile trade was not overlooked among the bullish factors influencing the stock market today.

In the absence of any considerable volume of outside buying demand, the professionals have deserted the market for the time being. Extended vacations have removed many of the most colorful of Wall Street traders from their speculative haunts, and as the result trading has dwindled to the lowest volume in years. At noon today less than 375,000 shares of stock had passed through the market, or about 20 per cent of the volume of the same period last year.

Bearish sniping at Warner Brothers, on dividend uncertainty, forced that stock to a new low for the year at 33 3/4. Radio Keith and Paramount were firm, with slight price gains to their credit.

PALATIAL SUMMER HOMES DESTROYED

SANDUSKY, O., Aug. 4.—Loss to two palatial summer homes on the Cedar Point Chaussee which were totally destroyed by fire yesterday, was estimated at $75,000 today.

Damage to the residence owned by Arthur Harbauer, Toledo manufacturer, was set at $50,000, and loss to the home of Harold Rosenzweig, Detroit business man, was estimated at $25,000.

The fire is believed to have started by a short circuit in the radio of the Harbauer house, and spread to the Rosenzweig home.

SPLASH She Swims to Conquer By Eleanore Burnett

Copyright, 1930, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST: Kitty Wilmont, crack swimmer and stenographer, orphan, comes to New York to be "free" and to live her own life. A good girl and pretty, Kitty's greatest fault is that she is "always right." She speedily gets a good job as one of several private secretaries to the Wall Street king, Ellery Goss, and meets and is friendly with Sally Ayers, his head bookkeeper; Sally's little sister, Baby; Hilda Stevenson, "phone girl"; Fatty Hemmings, stock broker; Bert Croynod, theatrical man and Atlee Wainright, handsome chief clerk, who loves her.

Edith Bartlett, a queen-of-the-files, sphinx-like girl who never smiles; Spike, a policeman lover of Hilda's she has yet to meet, and a mysterious Mr. Gordon Platt, supposed to be Goss' confidential partner, intrigue her curiosity.

At a swimming party in the natatorium she is confronted with a man who makes her heart beat just by looking at her. Later she learns that this is the mysterious Mr. Platt, whom Atlee hates, and who is given a somewhat hesitating reputation by others. Taking her home from an evening at Sally's, Bert Croynod warns Kitty against believing all she hears.

The next day she is called into the office of her employer, and introduced to Gordon Platt, with instructions to obey his orders as if they were from Mr. Goss. Her heart beating until she is almost suffocating, Kitty waits for his commands.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 9

"I'm sorry I didn't know you Saturday," began Mr. Platt. "I went to the natatorium just to see you swim."

Kitty gasped. That wasn't at all what she had expected. It sounded as if Mr. Platt thought this a social event!

"I suppose I should be flattered, but—I can't imagine why!" she stammered.

"I will tell you why in a moment. Before I do, please answer some questions. Do not be offended. Miss Wilmont, if they seem personal I do not ask out of curiosity."

Kitty bowed, unable to speak from amazement. Was it amazement which kept her silent? Or was it something else; something that clutched at her heart and made her breast rise and fall rapidly—"I hope my hair is right," she thought, nervously, suddenly conscious of a desire to appear well before this keen, almost hawk-faced man with the bitter, disillusioned eyes.

"I want to know, please, something about your life before you came here; your parents, your home, your education, your other positions."

Ordinarily Kitty would have resented this direct prying into her private business. But Mr. Goss had put her under this man's orders. Mr. Goss' orders were never disobeyed without dire results. Mr. Platt had said it wasn't curiosity—"I told him of my father, her simple life in Hillerton, her few hours a day in the bank."

The next question was a bomb-shell. "Are you married, engaged, in love with any one?"

"Mr. Platt! Really, I cannot imagine what possible interest my personal affairs may have for you!"

"I told you I'd tell you in a moment," snapped the dark man. He turned the battery of his eyes upon her; in their depths Kitty saw no guile, though she could not read them. "Please answer me."

"I am not married, engaged, or in any prospect of being."

He nodded. "Last week Mr. Goss dictated a letter to you addressed to Highman, Bender and Morse. Remember?"

Kitty nodded. Mr. Platt took from his pocket a wallet and from the wallet five one thousand dollar bills. He laid them on the desk in front of her.

"There are yours if you will get your note book and read me that letter!"

Kitty flushed, hotly. Then she rose to walk rapidly across the room. At the door she turned. "I hope you will never speak to me again!" she shot at him. "You are very chivalrous. You ascertain that I have no men in my life, and only then do you dare insult me!" She put her hand on the door knob. But it refused to turn. The door was locked.

Kitty turned with blazing eyes. "What does this mean?" she demanded. "Open that door!"

"Certainly!" Mr. Platt got up and walked to it. "But before you go, listen just a moment. You have not been insulted; only tested. The money is Mr. Goss'. It was his suggestion that I try to bribe you. You may ask him if you wish."

"But why—why?" cried Kitty. "I do not believe you!" Having made up her mind, it was difficult to change. His tremendous attraction for her on the one hand, the tales she had from him on the other, had kept judgment suspended. But with his curious questions and the offered bribe, something snapped in her mind; it was all true, then. He was a crook. Then he was also rouse, gambler, double crosser! And now he said it was Mr. Goss—"Sit down, please." The words were a command. To her surprise, Kitty sat. She was still flushed with indignation; she trembled a little, and her heart beat. Suddenly she knew she had not wanted to believe the curious tales told her of this man.

"We are in a jam," went on Mr. Platt. "We need help from someone above suspicion in this office. Mr. Goss said, of his two new secretaries, you had some symptoms of brains. I have been told about your swimming. As a general rule a fine athlete is a square person, something about the cult of the physical prevents crookedness. Hence I went Saturday to see you swim. I had to find out what kind of a person you are; I told Goss the offered bribe was unnecessary but he believes money will do anything—including the revealing of a crooked mind. So I did it. The point is now—will you help us?"

He was very handsome; a man any woman might be proud to attract. In spite of his attitude that this was business, she could not entirely disabuse her mind that there was something personal in this interview. She smiled; presumably, the dimple did its usual deadly work.

"Tell me how, first!" she said. "Give me your word you will not repeat this conversation to any one?"

"I give you my word."

"Very well. There is an information leak in this office which is costing us—Mr. Goss—a great deal of money. There are two ways to stop it. One is to fire every one and get a new crew, which is difficult, hard, expensive, and horribly unjust to the guiltless. It would mean suffering to many people who have not earned it."

"Yes, I can see that," put in Kitty, thinking he paused for her to say something.

breeds of the county fully in the ten different classes as follows: Oxforddowns, Southdowns, Hampshire, Shropshire, American Merinos, Lincoln, Cheviots, Ramboullies and Dorsets. Each of the above breeds show as separate classes with a total premium of $64 to each breed.

J. E. Lewis, Jamestown, is in charge of the swine department, which includes the following breeds: Poland Chinas, Spotted Poland Chinas, Hampshires, Duroc Jerseys and Chester Whites with a total of $170 to each breed.

The poultry department is in charge of R. K. Haines and comprises fifty-four different breeds of chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys with a rabbit show included. Feed will be furnished and a competent man will be in charge of taking care of the poultry.

The art department will be in charge of Mrs. L. H. Jones with Miss Nelle Ankeney as superintendent. This department carries a varied line. A. B. Lewis is in charge of the fruit and vegetable hall and as a member of the fair board will also supervise the Grange exhibit to which liberal premiums have been attached.

The boys' and girls' club department is under the leadership of E. A. Drake, county agent, Miss Ruth Radford, assistant home extension agent, and H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent. Five hundred and twenty boys and girls are enrolled in the club project to which the fair board gives $900 to carry on their various projects.

The boys and girls of this department and leaders are giving free tickets to the fair each day and do a great deal to boost the yearly exposition in attendance as well as in exhibits.

Other features will include the team pulling contests in front of the grandstand and a quilt tournament.

skirts of the city until the Reds had marched away, quietly taking possession later.

Aeroplane passengers who flew between Hanow and Kinkiang meanwhile reported that large bands of Communists were roving the countryside, with many towns already in fire.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 4.—Four foreign gunboats are hovering near the river city of Kinkiang today in expectation of Communists attack, expected hourly. Chinese defense forces consist of approximately 2,000 men in the face of an ever increasing horde of Reds.

The foreign vessels were considered adequate to shelter the evacuating foreigners, who are pouring into the threatened city from outlying districts without interruption. The gunboats include the American Luzon, the British Scarab and two Japanese ships.

Dispatches from the invaded districts indicated the Communists have practically overrun the districts in northern Kiangsi province, with Nanchang almost surrounded.

Repeated warnings from various governments have started the exodus of foreigners from the summer resort of Kuling, which is an imminent danger of falling into Communist hands.

ADMISSIONS CLEAR MYSTERY IN DEATHS IN NORTHERN OHIO

but declared he told Evans that he "didn't want his money" when they returned from the shooting.

Colletti, police said, admitted the murder of his young wife because, "She was unfaithful to me."

In his confession which he later signed, Colletti told police officials that he had taken his wife for a ride and had asked her about the rumors that she had been going with other men since their marriage. When she admitted it, Colletti said he stopped the car and ordered her to the ground where he shot her five times. He then drove back to Cleveland, leaving her body lie on the road.

He said they had been married on July 8, but had not been living together recently. Friday night he claimed he took a friend's car and drove by where she was living and then drove on to where he lived.

She later walked by, he said, and asked him to take her for a ride. After she had been identified Saturday, Colletti went to her sister's house and professed ignorance of the crime, police said. He was arrested there by detectives.

In his confession he claimed he threw his gun away after he had shot his bride.

Evans and Yakus were expected to be taken to Medina today. Indictments will be asked for both of the men, Medina County Prosecutor R. B. Bennett said today.

Two other men arrested by Sheriff Haffington in connection with the murder, have not yet been released. One was arrested with Evans. The other is a Mansfield resident.

week end and residents of that state could look to no relief. Five persons were listed as heat victims in incomplete reports there where forest fires threatened wooded areas of the state.

Washington temperatures reached the 100 mark for the eighth time this year Sunday and the bright sun that shone from a cloudless sky there today disheartened all hope of relief at present.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4.—Thunderstorms which were predicted for tonight were expected to bring relief from the record-breaking drought which reached a climax yesterday with three drownings and more than 100 grass fires in various sections of the city and suburban districts.

Temperatures here yesterday soared to 95.4 degrees, which is the highest in 38 years for August 3.

Three drownings were reported in this district yesterday while thousands of persons sought to find relief from the heat along the beaches and pools.

Ruth Hussey, 4, of East Cleveland, was drowned when she slipped into eighteen feet of water while playing along the shore of Lake Erie, Chagrin Falls.

George Miller, 34, was drowned when he fell from a boat on which he had been sleeping in Lake Erie, and Joseph Linek, 44, was drowned in Chagrin River.

This department gratefully acknowledges receipt of that handsome and informative volume, the "Directors' Annual and Production Guide of 1930" as a gift from Jack Allicote, editor of The Film Daily.

The annual is smartly gotten up this year and contains a world of interesting information, featuring the results of the Film Daily's recent poll of the ten best directors, the new film code of ethics, the standard player-producer contract.

"Strictly Modern," "Street of Chance," "Montana Moon," "Loose Ankles," "The Kibitzer," "Anna Christie," "Wedding Rings," "Burning Up," "The Other Tomorrow," "Sarah and Son," "The Next Room," "Light of the Western Stars," "The Careless Age," "The Big Pond," "The Flirting Widow," "Ladies Love Brutes" and "The Love Racket."

The column is recalcitrant in announcing the engagement of Dolores Del Rio, exotic Latin beauty of the screen, to Cedric Gibbons, screen art director. Dolores says she and Cedric are each supremely happy in a genuine love match.

an alphabetical list of directors and their work, short biographies of directors, a list of players, cameramen, authors, scenarists, film editors, titlers, composers and their work, film studios and their personnel and a number of interesting articles on the industry.

We don't know just why Jack Allicote considered this department worthy of receiving one of these albums, but if he wants it back he'll have to come after it. Especially since the volume contains the individual vote by name of each of the more than 300 critics who voted in the recent poll of directors, and there is your correspondent's name printed as big as life, spelled right and everything.

From R. Hayes Hamilton, who is again directing the fortunes of the movie theater operated in connection with the Hotel Aspinwall, Lenox, Mass., as a sideline of his regular work, comes the claim that he is the champion non-censor motion picture spectator in the United States.

Because he loses track of all the good movies while in Bermuda every winter, Hamilton has to preview the films at Pittsfield, Mass., in order to make his selection of films for the hotel theater. As a result he has seen forty-five pictures in the last forty-two days, which appears to me to be something of a record. He visits the five theaters in Pittsfield, sometimes seeing as many as three a day, previews being arranged in the mornings sometimes for his benefit. "Ham" says he has almost gotten to know the stars by their voices.

His August and September programs include such films as

DEATH CLAIMS JOHN GULTICE, FORMER XENIAN, SATURDAY

John R. Gultice, 30, Union City, Ind., formerly of Xenia, died at the Union City Hospital, Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, following an illness of two weeks. He was removed to the hospital last Thursday. Stereotocci was the cause of death.

Mr. Gultice was born in Greene County, July 21, 1900, and lived here until three and one-half years ago when he moved to Darke County, near Greenville, later moving to Union City. He was a member of the J. O. U. A. M. at Union City.

Mr. Gultice's marriage to Miss Marie Stingley took place June 4, 1921, and she survives with the following children: Daisy, Rosetta Jane, Paul and John Jr. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Granville Gultice, Xenia, and the following brothers and sisters: Joshua, south of Xenia; Frank, Farmington, Mich.; Thomas, at home; Mrs. Jesse Leveck, Jamestown, Mrs. Ida Stiles, Xenia; Mrs. Walter Weaver, Union City; Mrs. Sarah Aveyard, Farmington, Mich.; Mrs. Lewis Montgomery and Mrs. Charles Pope, Xenia and Mrs. William Shaw, Lebanon. One sister preceded him in death.

The body was removed by R. M. Need to the home of his parents, 433 W. Second St., this city, where funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. W. N. Shank. Burial will be made in Jamestown Cemetery. Friends may call at the Gultice home Monday evening 7 o'clock.

Famous Actor Realizes Boyhood's Dream

Miniature Railroad Carries Back to Youthful Days Portrayer of Sherlock Holmes as He Pilots Engine on Connecticut Estate

THE MINIATURE RAILROAD

REACHES THE TERMINAL

By ALICE ALDEN
William Gillette, the famous actor and portray of Sherlock Holmes has managed to turn back the hands of time. With the aid of a miniature railroad and a tiny but efficient locomotive he is varying his retirement from the theater by frequent trips into the kingdom of boyhood. During all his years of "trouping" he has kept before him his childhood ambition of some day driving a locomotive, and now not only is he driving a locomotive but he himself has designed, but he has constructed a perfect model railroad with which to take his guests sightseeing over his 1,500 acre estate in Connecticut.

It is a thrilling event to take a ride with Mr. Gillette, who despite his seventy-five years of active life is still extremely spry. With great pride he points out every detail of the small but powerful railroad system that winds through the most picturesque sections of his beautiful estate.

The tracks run over trestles, through tunnels, gardens and richly wooded groves and past tiny lakes and waterfalls. Every scrap of the work is done by the veteran actor himself, and after oiling and inspecting the engine he dons his engineer's cap, which closely resembles the type of headgear immortalized by the late Conan Doyle's famous sleuth. After seeing that his guests are seated in the cars he takes his place in the cab of the engine, and the ride, which is as thrilling for the passengers as for the driver, is on. The whistle screams shrilly at sharp turns, of which there are many, on this tricky railroad system, and the fine face of the noted actor lights up as his locomotive puffs along with all the importance and ease of a limited "flyer." And all too soon the train is back at its terminal and the unique ride is over, and the string of cars and the powerful little steam locomotive stand ready to receive, together with their famous driver-engineer, the expressions of admiration of the passengers, who invariably ask for repeat trips.

It was in May of this year that from his retirement to pay a graceful tribute to the man who always declared that Gillette had played a better detective than the Holmes of fiction fame. It took many years of persuasion on the actor's part until he persuaded the author of Sherlock to allow his famous character to be dramatized. Once he had given his permission, however, Conan Doyle took an active interest in the stage Sherlock and paid frequent and eloquent tribute to Gillette's genius both as a play-

HOT WATER Quick!

A Few Reasons For Plenty Of Hot Water

- for emergencies
- for better complexion
- for prettier hair
- for softer hands
- for greater health
- for easier shaving
- for less work
- for economy
- for more leisure

An Automatic Water Heater is worth its weight in gold when the emergency arises and someone calls for hot water quick! This and many other reasons indicate the need of hot water in the home.

Most people consider it necessary to have hot water as convenient as cold water. The need for hot water is so frequent that when it runs cold it means a tiresome wait.

An Automatic Water Heater will never disappoint you. It only requires the investment of a few dollars, with small payments monthly with your gas bill.

wright and an actor. Gillette has never shown any public interest in the spiritualistic activities of Conan Doyle, but on the occasion of the author's death spoke of the tireless devotion of Doyle to a cause that the great author had considered of such vital importance to humanity. For many years the author and the actor had enjoyed a deep friendship punctuated by frequent letters and many visits to each other. Their last meeting was on the occasion of Sir Arthur's last visit to the United States when he engaged on an extensive lecture tour on the phenomena of psychic research.

SCIENTISTS WILL PROBE "IT" AT SEX RESEARCH MEETING

LONDON, Aug. 4.—That mysterious, elusive thing known as "it," popularized by Elinor Glyn and Hollywood will be probed in all its scientific ramifications here by delegates from all over the world assembled for the international congress for sex research, which opens today.

So deeply do the Freudians and psychologists expect to delve into this subject that even members of the press, with exception of reporters from the British medical journal "The Lancet," will be barred from the sessions.

The congress will be held in the hall of the British Medical Association, and will last until August 9, by which time it is hoped many baffling problems will be solved to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Incidentally, Miss Glyn is skeptical as to whether the congress discovers anything about sex which "the rest of sophisticated world doesn't know."

"But isn't it sweet," she asked, "to have a congress of real sci-
